

Listing of Claims:

1.- 23. (canceled)

24. (previously presented) A computer system of exposing at least one local service as at least one web service, the computer system comprising:

- a receiving module within the computer system configured to receive a call for the at least one web service, wherein the call comprises a request and a response;

- a delegating module within the computer system configured to delegate the call to a client bundle;

- an obtaining module within the computer system configured to obtain the at least one local service from a service registry via the client bundle;

- an invoking module within the computer system configured to invoke at least one method on the at least one local service via the client bundle; and

- a returning module within the computers system configured to return a response from the invoked method for the at least one web service.

25. (previously presented) A processor-implemented method of exposing at least one local service as at least one web service via a computer system, the method comprising:

- receiving via the computer system a call for the at least one web service, wherein the call comprises a request and a response;

- delegating via the computer system the call to a client bundle;

- obtaining via the computer system that at least one local service from a service registry via the client bundle;

- invoking via the computer system at least one method on the at least one local service via the client bundle; and

- returning via the computer system a response from the invoked method for the at least one web service.